Family Provisions Act

Below are some reasons which might be appropriate for excluding the potential claimant _____

- Provision has been made for them during my lifetime.
- There has been no contact between us for many years and there is no relationship of love and affection between us. In these circumstances any gift to them would be contrary to the nature of our relationship.
- Their circumstances are far better than the beneficiaries that I have nominated and therefore some equity is achieved by such gifts.
- They have received substantial gifts from the estate of my late spouse and her relatives.
- They will receive substantial gifts from the estate of my former spouse and her relatives.
